

Policy Expert is the UK's number 1 rated home insurance provider, and we are expanding on its award-winning success with new products, opportunities, and partnerships. An InsurTech company built in the cloud, driven by excellence and data, with a no blame culture. An approachable team, with many years of expertise and knowledge in a wide range of domains.

What you will be working on - Welcome to the Platform API Team!

Policy Expert is built around the technology we create, and the platform API is the centre piece to our domain. Firmly focused on high quality architecture, lean development, and constantly improving practices and approaches.

Current projects include completely refreshing the renewal and auto-renewal domain model with a clean distributed microservice solution. Using Domain Driven Design allows the creation of robust and flexible microservices for future growth in 2019-2020 and beyond.

Other goals for 2019 are the addition of new business lines, including motor, pet, and others; as well as non-functional additions like improvements to our event streaming technologies, and deeper investigation of containers and service mesh solutions. This is all very exciting stuff to us...how about you?

What you will find here:

You won't find suits here, we run a relaxed, fun, open and honest environment, with trust and professionalism a must. We also understand the value of work / life balance, and all our team members enjoy flexible working hours and working from home.

At Policy Expert we focus on good software principles. SOLID, Ports & Adapters, Clean Code, TDD, and Domain Driven Design guide our delivery. Insurance is a complex and interesting domain, despite its boring exterior, but it is the people you work with here that make the real difference.

Who will you be working with:

A collaborative bunch of approachable developers, with many years of expertise and knowledge in a wide range of domains. Perhaps surprisingly, none of the development team has an insurance background, and we don't mind if you don't either. An environment of mutual trust between development and business, with a 'we are all in this together' attitude.

Our development team members' long tenure shows just how excellent a place this is for all levels of experience. Policy Expert has clear goals to achieve, and we hope you want to join us in creating an exciting disruptor in the insurance space.

Research tells us that some candidates are put off from applying because they cannot tick every box. If you think you can help, and you really want to join our growing and exciting business you should apply, even if you are not a complete match with the above. Feel free to contact us about any questions with no obligation.